Performance review

April delivered one of the more challenging macro backdrops in recent memory with the conflict in the Middle East pushing the oil price toward US$120/barrel and keeping investors on edge. Australian micro-caps stocks proved resilient nonetheless and the OC Micro-Cap Fund returned a respectable +2.2% for the month. The Fund has returned +24.0% over the past 12 months. The ongoing resilience of the market in general, and the Fund in particular, reinforces our view that meaningful value has emerged in our investable universe and points to further opportunity once conditions in the Middle East stabilise.

GenusPlus Group (GNP, +30.3%) rallied to fresh highs in April on a A$110m EPC win for the 200MW/800MWh Koolunga BESS project in South Australia. GNP offers leveraged exposure to a multi-year energy transition and grid investment cycle, with the latest contract win reinforcing our confidence in management's execution and disciplined growth. Recently added position, switchboard and switchroom manufacturer Mayfield Group (MYG, +24.9%), is exposed to similar industry demand trends as GNP which was affirmed in a market update in mid-April. Smart Parking (SPZ, -16.5%) traded lower during the month as the market became concerned about the prolonged effects of hostilities in the Middle East affecting parking volumes in key markets such as the UK. We remain focussed on longer term growth, including the opportunity for expansion in the nascent US and German markets, and have retained our position.

Outlook

The April ceasefire between the US and Iran has brought a degree of calm to global markets, though the situation remains tenuous. Sporadic incidents in and around the Strait of Hormuz are a reminder that the path to durable peace is rarely linear. Encouragingly, none of the principal parties - the US, Iran, Israel, or the broader Gulf - appear to have any meaningful appetite for prolonged hostilities. The economic costs are too acute, and the diplomatic pressure too sustained, for the present standoff to entrench, and we expect disruptions to ease materially over the coming months as shipping flows progressively normalise.

The Australian economy enters a delicate phase. Following a strong Q1 inflation print and the second round impact of elevated oil prices, the RBA looks set to deliver a third consecutive hike in May and a further move in August, taking the cash rate toward 4.8%. The corollary is a prolonged period of sub-trend growth, with unemployment likely drifting higher through the balance of the year - a dynamic compounded by Australia's reliance on imported oil and refined products, which leaves the domestic economy particularly exposed to the current energy shock. The US, by contrast, is now broadly energy self-sufficient and has been largely insulated, with consumer spending, employment and corporate earnings all holding up well - a backdrop that should continue to underpin global risk appetite. Reflecting this divergence, we have pared back our exposure to the domestic consumer; however, with the market now pricing increasingly bearish outcomes in consumer discretionary names, we expect attractive opportunities to emerge in the coming months.

The recent sell-off in domestic micro-cap industrial stocks has been brutal, but dislocation is precisely where patient, disciplined investors are rewarded. Our universe is now populated with quality businesses — durable franchises, capable management, and resilient earnings power - trading at materially more attractive prices than just months ago. History, and our experience through prior crises, leaves us highly confident the portfolio is well placed to deliver strong returns in the years ahead.
