Performance review

April delivered one of the more challenging macro backdrops in recent memory, with the conflict in the Middle East and oil pushing toward US$120/barrel keeping investors on edge. Australian small caps proved resilient nonetheless, and the OC Premium Small Companies Fund returned +7.9% for the month, supported by excellent stock specific newsflow across the portfolio. The strength of the bounce reinforces our view that meaningful value has emerged in our investable universe and points to further opportunity once conditions in the Middle East stabilise

ZIP Co (ZIP, +56.8%) rebounded strongly in April following its 3Q FY26 update, with US bad debt trends improving ahead of expectations following management's earlier decision to constrain the nascent Pay-in-8 product. The US consumer environment remains resilient and the growth trajectory strong. Codan Limited (CDA, +33.3%) materially upgraded FY26 guidance in late April, now expecting EBIT and NPAT both up more than 60%, driven by strong momentum across the Communications (margins hitting the 30% target a year early) and Minelab divisions. Pexa Group (PXA, -17.5%) de-rated as ARNECC's decision to not proceed with the Interoperability Program was read as accelerating momentum toward utility-style pricing regulation. The 'interop' pause is a near-term positive — preserving PEXA's monopoly — and we view the sell off as overdone given pricing recommendations remain preliminary and non-binding.

Outlook

The April ceasefire between the US and Iran has brought a degree of calm to global markets, though the situation remains tenuous. Sporadic incidents in and around the Strait of Hormuz are a reminder that the path to durable peace is rarely linear. Encouragingly, none of the principal parties - the US, Iran, Israel, or the broader Gulf - appear to have any meaningful appetite for prolonged hostilities. The economic costs are too acute, and the diplomatic pressure too sustained, for the present standoff to entrench, and we expect disruptions to ease materially over the coming months as shipping flows progressively normalise.

The Australian economy enters a delicate phase. Following a strong Q1 inflation print and the second round impact of elevated oil prices, the RBA looks set to deliver a third consecutive hike in May and a further move in August, taking the cash rate toward 4.8%. The corollary is a prolonged period of sub-trend growth, with unemployment likely drifting higher through the balance of the year - a dynamic compounded by Australia's reliance on imported oil and refined products, which leaves the domestic economy particularly exposed to the current energy shock. The US, by contrast, is now broadly energy self-sufficient and has been largely insulated, with consumer spending, employment and corporate earnings all holding up well - a backdrop that should continue to underpin global risk appetite. Reflecting this divergence, we have pared back our exposure to the domestic consumer; however, with the market now pricing increasingly bearish outcomes in consumer discretionary names, we expect attractive opportunities to emerge in the coming months.

The recent sell-off in domestic small-cap industrial stocks has been brutal, but dislocation is precisely where patient, disciplined investors are rewarded. Our universe is now populated with quality businesses — durable franchises, capable management, and resilient earnings power - trading at materially more attractive prices than just months ago. History, and our experience through prior crises, leaves us highly confident the portfolio is well placed to deliver strong returns in the years ahead.
